Academic Research Paper Guidelines for Undergraduate Study

Writing an Academic Research Paper: What is it?

The Academic Research Paper module is for final year students. It is a core requirement for Bachelor of International Affairs Management (BIAM) students. An academic research paper offers the opportunity for students to undertake independent research and to produce an in-depth study of a specific topic within the field of international relations. It further enables students to explore a topic in more depth than an assignment essay. In undertaking an academic research paper, students need to adhere to the following steps:

- consider what area of research they are interested in pursuing, that relates to one of the modules taken prior
- narrow down their research interest to a specific topic, which is to be done in consultation with their supervisor
- formulate their own research problems and carry out the research projects themselves. Under no circumstances should students use a third party to undertake the research or writing process on their behalf. Students are not allowed to work on a joint project or to work on exactly the same topic as another student.
- identify specific research questions
- decide what type of research methodologies will be used for data collection and according to what time frame
- analyse and write up the data in a critical manner

An Academic Research Paper should:

- be a piece of small-scale research which can be completed within one semester
- be both challenging and enjoyable to do
- be organised into chapters and with a contents page, references and bibliography
- often, but not always, link theory with practice
- include some form of empirical research rather than be entirely dependent on secondary research sources. This is to be done with the guidance of the supervisor.

Course Objectives

On completion of an academic research paper, students should be able to:

- demonstrate the ability to conduct a major social science (international relations) inquiry using specific research methodologies and secondary data.
- demonstrate academic written skills of a reasonably high standard
Structure and Argument

An academic research paper should be a sustained argument that is the result of a student’s reading, thinking and information-gathering. When done well, readers of an academic research paper will find the students’ presentation and framing of the topic engaging, convincing and thought-provoking. A strong paper will utilise a selection of concepts, theoretical ideas, observations, statistical findings and call upon faculties of criticism and imagination in order to arrive at defensible conclusions about a topic that is challenging and puzzling to the student.

Academic research papers tend to be formatted in the following manner. First, there is a discussion of a larger problem or issue. This is then followed by a smaller-scale piece of empirical research (example 1: the larger issue is why more men than women study international relations as adult students, and the smaller-scale piece of research explores the same issue but zeroes in on one particular higher education institution; example 2: the larger issue is online staff development training and its correlation to staff performance while the smaller-scale research explores the same issue but with regards to a particular workplace). The small scale empirical research is intended to shed some light on the larger issue, with the larger issue providing the context within which the small scale research is situated.

Requirements and Format for the Academic Research Paper

1. Requirements

   1.1. Maximum length of paper is between 12,000-15,000 words, which only include the main text and exclude the endnotes, appendices, and bibliography. There is no minimum number of words. The academic research paper will be evaluated based on the quality instead of length.

   1.1.1. Students may include interview/ focus group/ survey questions as appendices but the transcripts are not necessary.

   1.2. Students may write either in Bahasa Malaysia or English, subject to the supervisor’s consent.

   1.3. Three (3) copies (two HARD-BOUND and one RING-BOUND) of academic research paper must be submitted to SOIS General Office. All copies of Academic Research Paper must be printed in SINGLE-SIDED pages using A4 size paper. One HARD-BOUND copy will eventually be given to the supervisor after the evaluation process. Student must take into consideration the time it takes to get their paper bound by the printer, which typically takes anywhere between 3-10 working days.
1.4. The academic research paper should be submitted no later than the end of week 14 of the semester.

1.5. The text should be typed in letter quality using font size 12 and double spacing. Long quotations should be indented, single-spaced and in block quotations. No quotation marks should be used.

1.6. Penalties

1.6.1. Three marks shall be deducted from the final mark of the academic research paper for every additional 1,000 words (or part thereof) beyond the word limit.

1.6.2. One mark shall be deducted from the final mark of the academic research paper for each additional day (or part thereof) beyond the deadline.

2. Format

2.1. For binding purpose, the left margin should be 4.0 cm wide. The top, bottom and right margins should be 2.5 cm wide. (Refer to diagram next page). The top margin of the first page in each chapter should be 5 cm.

2.2. An academic research paper should contain three main divisions: the preliminary pages or front end; the text or main body, usually divided into parts – chapters and sections; and the supplementary pages, or back end.
The preliminary pages include elements such as the title page, dedication, abstracts in English and Bahasa Melayu, acknowledgements, declaration form, table of contents, list of tables, figures and abbreviations.

The supplementary pages consist of references and appendices or annexes. Table 1 is an example of how elements in a project paper from preliminary or front end to back end are arranged. We recommend that the example is used as a guide, although not every academic research paper will include all the items listed.

3. Plagiarism
In submitting assessed written work it is important to beware of plagiarism, which is the unacknowledged use of other people’s ideas and/or written work as well improper referencing. Universiti Utara Malaysia regards plagiarism as a very serious issue. Penalties for those found guilty include suspension or expulsion (for further details on what constitutes plagiarism, please refer to the university’s academic rules handbook, specifically general prohibitions 5.1, 5.2, 6.1, 6.2. 6.3). Students are advised to submit their work through turnitin, a plagiarism checker software, which is accessible through the UUM Learning Zone. And do not hesitate to seek advice from supervisors for more clarification.

4. Extensions
Extensions will only be granted in extenuating personal, medical or academic circumstances. Students need to fill in the ARP-03 Form (Extension of Academic Research Paper Submission Form), supported by the supervisor before submitting it to the SOIS Office to obtain an Incomplete (TL – Tidak Lengkap) grade. The Incomplete (TL) grade must be redeemed within the first four weeks after the Semester last date of teaching. If the Incomplete (TL) grade is redeemed after the first four (4) weeks, but not more than the second four (4) weeks’ time, students will receive one grade lower from what they are entitled to (Refer to Academic Affairs Department circular). Student is entitled for grade F if incomplete (TL) grade is redeemed after the eight (8) week.
5. Marking and Peer Review

Academic Research Papers will be marked by the student’s supervisor and peer reviewed by another academic from within the same school appointed by the Undergraduate Students Research Paper (ARP) Committee. The marking criteria will be based on a standardised assessment rubric. Students are required to submit one copy of RING-BOUND THESIS (reviewer’s version) without supervisor’s name stated. The front page must state the title of the ARP, student’s name and matric number only. Peer reviewer will be responsible to provide comments and recommendation, as well as proposing appropriate marks. The recommendation and proposed marks will be non-binding unless otherwise stated by the Committee. Should there be any major discrepancies of marks (a difference of two grades or more) between the supervisor and the reviewer, the ARP Committee will consult both parties in order to reach a consensus. In a case of disagreement between the supervisor and the reviewer, the allocation of 75:25 of grade will be imposed (75% of the marks from the supervisor while 25% from the reviewer).

6. Supervision

The students are responsible for interacting with their supervisors in a professional manner, and for doing their part in maintaining positive working relationships. Should any issues arise between the students and supervisors, an appropriate course of action may be taken by way of requesting for a change of supervisor in accordance with the following procedure:

- the student submits the ARP-04 Form (Change of Supervisor) to the SOIS Undergraduate Coordinator for a change of supervisor
- the SOIS Undergraduate Coordinator will process the request, which will involve consulting with all relevant parties
- the SOIS Undergraduate Coordinator forwards the request and a recommendation (including pertinent comments as may apply) to the Head of Department for endorsement.

7. Ethical Research Guidelines

i. As a rule there should be no covert research or deception about aims of research.

ii. Respondents / informants should know that they are the subjects of research, and participation should be voluntary.

iii. Participants must not be hurt, physically or psychologically, by the study.

iv. In participant observation studies, observation may be conducted without the subject’s knowledge if the activities observed are public for all to see, including the researcher.
v. Once verbal contact with the subject is initiated and personalized knowledge is sought, the subject should be informed of the research project and permission to continue the study must be sought.

vi. The researcher should ensure and preserve confidentiality of information collected if the respondent or informant requires it. (This may not be relevant to all studies, i.e.: in some oral history studies, people may wish to be identified.)

vii. If you are unsure or unclear about the ethical considerations of your research project, please consult your supervisor and / or the SOIS undergraduate coordinator.

[Should there be any problem or further enquiries, please refer to SOIS Undergraduate Coordinator]
